1. The 1954 production plan of VEB Sachsenwerk Radeberg provides for a total production of 59,500 television receivers. Of this number, 27,500 are for export to Russia. In early April 1954 the German government was advised that an additional Russian export order for 20,000 T-II Leningrad television receivers would soon be placed 1/.

2. VEB Sachsenwerk Radeberg can only comply with the Russian export order if it receives 6,900 square meters of flat glass (Flachglas), AV quality. This glass is needed for the television receiver screens. The glass mills in East Germany are now able to provide glass of the desired quality.
